INSURGENTS ON TOP. A Fight in Which Three Chilean Vessels are Defeated.

New York, June 3.-A Valparaise correspondent of the World, under date of April 30, says: Chanaral, a few hundred miles north of Caldera, was the scene on April 24 of a naval battle in which the merchant vessel, Bertha, was sunk and a flotilla of three Government vessels was defeated by the Insurgent Crusier Magallanes. The Magallanes was attacked on the morning of that day by the Admiral Lynch, the Condell and the Sargeant Aldea. This flotilla formed in a triangle, the Magallanes being in the opening thereof and exposed while she could only work her forward battery and light Hotchkiss guns. She made every shot tell, however, and soon the smoke stack of the Lynch was blown away, killing twenty men. The Sargeant Aldea was nearly blown to pieces and the foremast of the Condell was blown into the sea. The forward port battery of the Magallanes was silenced. The Lynch fired a torpedo which came straight for the Magallanes but, by a singular coincidence, a cannon balldropping into the water diverted the course of the torpedo towards the bark, Bertha, which was sunk with the loss of two men. The Government fleet soon discontinued the battle and put to sea, followed by the Insurgent Cruiser.

The kinetograph is a combined pho nograph and photographic camera working together simultaneously. The camera is fitted with a gelatine film roll a mile long and three quarters of an inch wide, on which forty-six pictures can be taken in one second. Thus, for half an hour the scenes and sounds on a stage can be perfectly recorded. Then, in a darkened room, by aid of calcium light, magnifying lenses and canvas every move of the subjects can be faithfully reproduced while the phonograph pours
